The chapel was built about two years ago by a few of the colonists, and since that time union services have been held there at intervals by various clergymen. From now on services will be held regularly in the church, the congregation of which numbers about twenty-five. St. John's Episcopal Church is the name selected.

It is true that in addition to being stabbed by one of the antagonists the American citizen has been jostied by the other. But is Mr. Hertwis's bilindness so complete that he believes any rational person or intelligent nation can be missied into making no distinction between "jostled" and "stabbed"?

If the illustration quoted and the reasoning accompanying it are a fair sample of kultural enlightenment the less we have of it in this country the better.
